Current position and responsibilities

I am Researcher of Philosophy at NMBU since 2011, where I lead the interdisciplinary Centre for Applied Philosophy of Science (NMBU CAPS) and the global research network CauseHealth – Causation, Complexity and Evidence in Health Sciences – with Dr Elena Rocca. I teach Philosophy, Ethics and Theory of Science to non-philosophers on Bachelor, Master and PhD-level, with consistently high student scores. I have served as a member of the National Commission for the Investigation of Research Misconduct since 2017 and the local Research Ethics Committee at NMBU since 2014. I'm currently involved in the supervision of a PhD-student who works on responsible research and innovation. Since 2012 I have published mainly within Philosophy of Medicine and Science, and I'm on the Editorial Advisory Boards of the journal Philosophy of Medicine. I have published six books, two of which are edited collections by trans-disciplinary networks from 2020.

Education

My education is in philosophy and the humanities. In both my graduate and doctoral work, I was concerned with philosophy of language expressing conditional and causal relationships, and the crucial role of context for meaning and truth. This work has motivated and informed all my subsequent research within causality, complexity and evidence-base in science and medicine.

2016 Leadership Development Program for Research and Education (50 hours), NMBU

2014 Pedagogy for Higher Education, PPUN400, 10 credits, NMBU

2005 Doctor Artium in Philosophy (4 years), Faculty for Social Sciences, University of Tromsø. Our Conditional World. A Critique of the Formal Logical Approach. Supervisor: Professor Johan Arnt Myrstad. Dissertation submitted 4 December 2004, and publicly defended on 16 September 2005. Degree awarded on 19 October 2005.

1999 Cand. Philol. in Philosophy (2 years), Faculty for Social Sciences, University of Tromsø.

1998 Feminist Philosophy (30 credits), University of Tromsø

RANI LILL ANJUM

1996 Cand. Mag. (BA equivalent, 4 years), including Philosophy (University of Tromsø, 90 credits), Logic (University of Bergen, 60 credits), Latin (University of Oslo, 30 credits), Classical Studies (University of Tromsø, 30 credits)

- 1997-2000 Teaching assistant, Department of Philosophy, University of Tromsø
- 1996 Teaching assistant, Examen Philosophicum, Department of Philosophy, University of Bergen

I RESEARCH

Research leadership and funding

I have developed and led four FRIPRO projects from Norwegian Research Council (NFR) since 2001. In total, I have secured 25,7 million NOK of funding for 15 years of research, covering the salary for myself, 2 PhD-students, 2 Postdocs and 3 Visiting Professors at NMBU. The last 3 years of our CauseHealth research has been funded by the WHO's collaborating centre for global drug monitoring, for developing new methods for drug safety evaluation.

- 2018 - 2021 CauseHealth Risk and Safety – Causation, Probability and Complexity in Pharmacovigilance, 2.6 million NOK, Research Project, sponsored by the WHO's Uppsala Monitoring Centre for Drug Safety (UMC), at NMBU (1.10.2018 – 30.09.2021). The project includes funding for 1 Research Fellow. PI: Elena Rocca, Co-I: Rani Lill Anjum
- 2015 - 2019 CauseHealth – Causation, Complexity and Evidence in Health Sciences, 9 million NOK, Research Project, FRIHUMSAM, FRIPRO NFR, at NMBU (1.4.2015 – 31.03.2019). The project included funding for 2 Postdocs, 1 Adjunct Professor and 2 Visiting Researchers. PI: Rani Lill Anjum
- 2011 - 2014 Causation in Science, 10.1 million NOK, Research project, FRIHUMSAM, FRIPRO NFR, at NMBU (1.1.2011 – 31.12.2014). The project included funding for 2 PhDs, 1 Adjunct Professor, and a 5 months Overseas Fellowship to work with Stephen Mumford at Nottingham. PI: Rani Lill Anjum
- 2007 - 2009 Causation, Dispositions and Laws, 2.5 million NOK, Postdoctoral fellowship, FRIHUM, FRIPRO NFR, hosted by University of Tromsø (1.1.2007 - 31.12.2009). Included 12 months overseas grant for a research stay at University of Nottingham, UK. PI: Rani Lill Anjum
- 2005 3 months Project Development Grant (overgangsstipend), The Research Unit, University of Tromsø (1.2.2005 - 1.5.2005)

RANI LILL ANJUM

- 2001 - 2005 The Problem of Conditionals, 1.5 million NOK, Doctoral fellowship, FRIHUM, FRIPRO NFR, hosted by University of Tromsø (1.2.2001 - 1.2. 2005). Included a 12 months Overseas Grant for a research stay at Simon Fraser University, Vancouver Canada. PI: Rani Lill Anjum
- 1999 6 months Project Development Grant (overgangsstipend), The Research Unit, University of Tromsø (1.8.1999 - 31.12.1999)

Award for impact outside academia

Award for Excellence in Person-centered Healthcare, Third Annual Awards Ceremony of the European Society for Person Centered Healthcare, London 29.09.2016, for the CauseHealth project, which “has already made great strides in advancing the concept and practice of person-centered healthcare and its continued work is set to make a definitive contribution to the field”. Professor Andrew Miles, CEO, European Society for Person Centered Healthcare

Networks and collaborations

Co-authoring

I co-author with researchers from philosophy and other disciplines, primarily for the intellectual and personal benefits of sharing and developing ideas in collaboration. This is unusual in the Humanities, where we don't need a whole team to carry out different parts of a research project. When I work with others, we are equal authors, where each contributes equally to the work, intellectually and practically. This is possible because we use the Mumford Method for Academic Writing, which is particularly suitable for process-based writing and co-authoring. In an article in Times Higher Education on 16 December 2015, Stephen Mumford and I talk about how we have confronted suspicion and misconceptions of co-authorships.

Trans-disciplinary research networks

I'm involved in various research networks and projects, but these are the ones where I have played a central role in the planning, organisation and/or execution of the research.

II TEACHING

Teaching

I love teaching and I have taught regularly since 1996. I especially enjoy teaching philosophy to non-philosophers. I use discussions, everyday examples, online resources and teaching handouts, and my student scores have been consistently high (5,0-5,8 out of 6). In 2016 I was in the top 10 nomination to the semester's best lecturer at NMBU.

- 2021 PPVE400 Master and PhD Supervision, course for NMBU staff, NMBU, guest lecturer
